The Lehigh MS in Economics program is one of the few business-school-offered programs that is completely focused on the Masters level. While there is preparation for optional Ph.D. matriculation, the focal point of this program is on the Masters level. Supported by a faculty known for strong research – as well as award-winning teaching – students benefit from an intimate and highly selective program.

Why a Lehigh MS in Economics?

- Small class sizes that maximize interaction with highly recognized faculty.
- 30-credit hour program that exposes students to current research undertaken by our faculty in their fields of interest.
- In one year, students can supplement their core coursework with elective courses in finance, international relations, engineering, political science, mathematics, or marketing.
- Students will be prepared to pursue a wide variety of careers in fields such as consulting, public policy, and economic development.
- Opportunity to pursue legal professions through law school or continue into academia through Ph.D. programs.

cbe.lehigh.edu/mseco
The Lehigh M.S. in Economics program will develop you in a way that prepares you to begin your career at some of the most well-known companies in the world. The strong mix of quantitative skills and theoretical understanding places you in a strong and unique position in the labor market.

Geoff Wilson
2014
KPMG