Perella Department of Finance, College of Business and Economics
Bethlehem, Pennsylvania 18015-3117 USA

Assistant Professor of Finance

The Perella Department of Finance, which is part of Lehigh University's College of Business and Economics (CBE), is now accepting applications for a tenure track Assistant Professor. Our department is comprised of well-trained scholars and teachers who embody strong research skills and have published in top-rated refereed finance journals or related fields such as Accounting, Economics, and Management. We are looking for a colleague to join our existing faculty in the fall of 2019. The selected candidate will be required to teach nine credit hours per academic year (i.e. a 3 course teaching load); the teaching load is subject to the CBE Teaching Load Policy. The minimum qualification for an applicant is a graduate degree. Individuals nearing the completing of their Ph.D. degree in Finance or a related field must show evidence that the degree requirements will be substantially completed prior to effective date of employment. Applicants must demonstrate the potential for publishing in top-rated refereed finance journals or related fields (Accounting, Economics) via working papers and presentations. All financial specializations will be considered. This position is expected to complement ongoing developments within the department, the college, and the university.

Our flagship undergraduate program in finance is highly rated and is the largest major in terms of graduating seniors at commencement. The department also benefits from a significant presence on Wall Street through the many alumni that work there. The aim of the department is to further increase the visibility of our finance programs and the college. The department is concurrently also recruiting for an endowed chair full professor position. More information about the department is available here:

For 150 years, Lehigh University has combined outstanding academic and learning opportunities with leadership in fostering innovative research. The institution is among the nation's most selective, highly ranked private research universities. Founded in 1865, Lehigh University has about 5,000 undergraduates and 2,000 graduate students. Approximately 1700 undergraduates, 300 graduate students, and 84 full time faculty members comprise the College of Business & Economics. In addition to offerings at the undergraduate level, an MBA, Masters in Management, M.S. programs in Accounting and Information Analysis, Economics, and Analytical Finance, and an economics-based Ph.D. program are also offered. Joint programs exist between business and engineering both at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Our programs have been recognized in various rankings. Please see <https://cbe.lehigh.edu/> for additional details. Importantly, as a university, Lehigh is ranked 46th among national research universities in the 2018 US News & World Report survey, and placed in the most competitive category in both Peterson's Guide and Barron's Profile of American Colleges.

Lehigh University is located in Bethlehem, PA (pop. 75,000) which is in the center of the Lehigh Valley (pop. 820,000).
